

Sheltered workshops help entire community

In response to the letter about sheltered workshops being desperately needed, I agree. I am so thankful for the one in North Tonawanda, Allentown Industries.

I have had so many pieces of furniture refinished there. The workers do a remarkable job and the prices they charge are so much more reasonable than other refinishing-ers. It may take longer, but what difference does a little more wait time matter when you are getting quality refinishing at an affordable price, plus helping out a wonderful organization that in turn helps out so many great people?

It's an uplifting experience to go to this place with the work you want done. You meet the people there and see how happy and enthusiastic they are to be working and helping others. Help keep these workshops in our lives; they are important to everyone.
